Location

Newport has grown in importance in its South Wales location especially so in the last 50 years. It now has a population of approximately 160,000.

Newport is well connected with junctions 4 and 5 of the M4 close to the city. J4 leads to the B4237 which crosses to the centre of the city and passes close to the subject property.

As would be expected the city has many local facilities and amenities with a variety of housing stock. The town is generally level centring on the River Usk but there are some hilly parts including the subject location.

The church is in a residential area. It does not have any parking and occupies a majority of the site, but there are some gardens at the rear.

Description

The church is primarily in two distinct parts, the Church, and the Sunday School. We have adopted these uses to distinguish the accommodation provided. There are no burials on the site.

The church is accessed immediately from the rear of the public thoroughfare into a draft lobby before entering the sanctuary with its wooden pews for approximately 175 people. The Sanctuary has a balcony around three sides for a further 100 people. Beyond there are rooms at the rear or the hall and further rooms in the basement level which includes a hall with a timber sprung floor as well as kitchen and other rooms ideal for social event occasions.

Behind the church as a separate building is the Sunday School. This takes the form of a central hall with a stage area with smaller class rooms around three sides.

The buildings are both gas fired radiator heated.

To the rear of the Sunday School there are gardens which also have a further access from the terrace in Victoria Avenue. This is for pedestrian purposes only and would appear to have not been in recent regular use.

Around the overall site there is a variety of hard paved pavements which allow access by the able bodied and disability assistance machines.

Both buildings are in a condition that would permit immediate use but would benefit from an extensive refurbishment programme. The masonry walls with tiled roofs have a variety of timber and PVCu windows and doors in different locations.
